[I] It is said that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. Maybe that's why many people may be open to trying foreign food at lunch or dinner, but they're not adventurous enough to experiment with anything new at breakfast. [II] But what about you? [III] Below, we look at typical breakfasts in some different countries. [IV]

Would you have them or are they too spicy, too fattening or just too different?

The traditional breakfast in South Korea is rice and soup. People then choose extra dishes to go with it such as grilled fish, vegetables and kimchi, which is pickled cabbage with chilies. Kimchi is so popular that the first Korean astronaut took some with him to the international space station! Of course, these days, many Koreans have such busy lifestyles they don't have enough time to make breakfast and just grab a quick coffee and some cereal or toast.

Breakfast in Bulgaria includes tea or strong coffee, sesame bread and butter, cheese made from sheep's milk, honey, olives, boiled eggs and- most importantly - kiselo mlyako, a local yoghurt. Bulgaria has a lot of people aged over 100 and many believe that the secret behind this is their yoghurt, which most Bulgarians eat every day.

Many Costa Ricans start their day with the national dish, gallo pinto, which is a mixture of fried rice and black beans. It's lightly spiced and often served with fried plantain (a kind of banana used like a vegetable in a lot of Central American and Caribbean cooking), cream and fried eggs. There's usually some strong local coffee as well-or perhaps some agua dulce ("sweet water"), which is made from sugar cane juice.

(Adapted from Outcomes, Pre-Intermediate by Kathryn, Aldridge-Morris)

Read the following passage and choose the correct answer to each of the questions.

1. The rise of electric vehicles (EVs) is transforming the car industry and changing how we think about transportation and the environment. This movement began gaining significant popularity in the 21st century as people became increasingly aware of the harmful effects of gasoline-powered vehicles on the planet. Traditional vehicles emit large amounts of greenhouse gases, which contribute to climate change and air pollution. Conversely, electric vehicles produce zero emissions from their tailpipes, which greatly reduces their impact on the environment.

2. One of the main advantages of electric vehicles is their efficiency. Electric vehicles convert over 85% of electrical energy into movement, while gasoline engines only convert about 20-30% of the energy from gasoline. This higher efficiency means that they require less energy to travel the same distance, thereby conserving energy resources. Moreover, as renewable energy sources like wind and solar become more prevalent, the electricity used to charge EVs is becoming cleaner, further reducing their carbon footprint.

3. [I] In addition to their direct environmental benefits, electric vehicles also promote the development of new technologies and infrastructures that support a more sustainable future. [II] For instance, the advancement of battery technology not only improves the range and performance of EVs but also paves the way for better energy storage solutions. [III] Improved batteries can store extra renewable energy and release it when needed, making the power grid more reliable and efficient. [IV]

4. However, the production of electric vehicles is not without its environmental challenges. The manufacturing process, particularly the production of lithium-ion batteries, requires significant amounts of raw materials such as lithium, cobalt, and nickel. Extracting these materials can lead to environmental degradation and human rights issues. Therefore, it is crucial to develop sustainable mining practices and improve recycling methods for EV batteries.

Question 31: Which of the following could be the best title for the passage?

A. Challenges of Renewable Energy Adoption B. The Rise and Impact of Electric Vehicles
C. An Uncertain Future for Electric Vehicles D. Sustainable Energy Sources for the Future

A. Electric vehicles use a much larger proportion of their energy for movement than gasoline engines do.

B. Gasoline engines convert more energy into movement than electric vehicles do.

C. Electric vehicles and gasoline engines use almost the same proportion of energy for movement.

D. Gasoline engines waste less energy because they convert most of their fuel into movement.

Question 34: The word they in paragraph 2 refers to _____.
A. the advantages B. gasoline engines C. electric vehicles D. energy resources
Question 35: The word prevalent in paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to _____.
A. different B. important C. popular D. expensive

Question 36: Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

A. Electric vehicles are more efficient than gasoline-powered vehicles and will soon completely replace them.

B. Electric vehicles offer environmental and technological benefits, although battery production poses environmental and ethical challenges.

C. Renewable energy sources are the only effective way to reduce pollution caused by transportation.

D. The production of electric vehicles causes more environmental damage than the use of traditional vehicles.

Question 37: Where in paragraph 3 does the following sentence best fit?

These developments can benefit not only electric vehicles but also the wider energy sector.

A. [I] B. [II] C. [III] D. [IV]

Question 38: According to paragraph 3, improved battery technology _____.
A. reduces the environmental impact of battery disposal
B. decreases the manufacturing cost of electric vehicles
C. increases the size of electric vehicle batteries
D. helps with developing better energy storage solutions
Question 39: Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?
A. The harmful effects of gasoline-powered vehicles on the environment.
B. The rise in popularity of electric vehicles in the 21st century.
C. The cost comparison between electric vehicles and gasoline vehicles.
D. The efficiency of electric vehicles compared to gasoline engines.
Question 40: It can be inferred from the passage that _____.
A. the adoption of electric vehicles presents both benefits and challenges
B. electric vehicles will be less popular due to the lack of raw materials
C. electric vehicles are completely dependent on renewable energy sources
D. the rise of electric engines will put an end to gasoline vehicles in the near future.

ChatGPT is a state-of-the-art language model developed by OpenAI, which has become increasingly popular due to its versatility and ability to respond to natural language. Like any technology, ChatGPT has both advantages and disadvantages that must be taken into account.

One of the main advantages of ChatGPT is its ability to process and respond to language in a natural and intuitive way. [I] This makes it highly adaptable to a wide range of applications, such as virtual assistants, customer service chatbots, and language translation. [II] It can also save time and money for companies by automating tasks that would normally require human labor. [III] Another advantage of ChatGPT is its ability to continuously learn and improve through training on large amounts of data. This means that the model can become increasingly accurate and effective over time, leading to better user experiences and improved efficiency. [IV]

However, there are also several potential disadvantages of ChatGPT that must be taken into consideration. One concern is the possibility of misuse or abuse of the technology, such as generating fake news or conducting cyberattacks like the current apps. This is especially concerning as the model can generate convincing text that is difficult to distinguish from human-generated content. Another concern is the potential for bias in the language model, as it is trained on data that may contain implicit biases or inaccuracies. This can lead to discriminatory responses or perpetuate existing biases, particularly towards underrepresented groups. Furthermore, the deployment of ChatGPT can also have an impact on the job market, as it may replace human workers in certain industries. This could potentially lead to job losses and exacerbate existing inequalities.

In conclusion, while ChatGPT has numerous benefits in terms of language processing and machine learning, it is crucial to consider and address potential drawbacks such as the possibility of misuse, bias, and impact on the job market. To ensure the responsible development and deployment of this technology, it is important to prioritize ethics, transparency, and the creation of inclusive and equitable solutions.
