Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

The generation gap refers to the differences in values, beliefs, habits, and behavior between members of younger and older generations. In traditional extended families, living with grandparents, parents, and children under one roof was common. While this setup provided strong family support, it often caused conflicts due to differences in viewpoints.

Older generations typically value stability, traditional customs, and strict discipline. They believe that children should strictly follow family rules and respect older family members without hesitation. On the other hand, younger generations, influenced by modern education, globalization, and technology, value personal freedom, independence, and creativity. They prefer to express their own opinions and make independent life choices.

Another major area of conflict is the use of technology. Teenagers today spend a significant amount of time interacting on social media networks, playing online games, and consuming digital content. Many parents worry that excessive screen time can harm their children's physical health and academic performance. Meanwhile, teenagers often feel that their parents are too old-fashioned and do not understand their digital world.

Despite these differences, bridging the generation gap is entirely possible. Effective communication, active listening, and mutual respect are key solutions. When family members are willing to sit down, share their feelings, and listen to each other's perspectives, mutual understanding can be established. Parents can learn about modern technology from their children, while teenagers can gain valuable life wisdom from their elders' experiences.

19. What is the main idea of the passage?

A. The causes and solutions of conflicts in modern education.

B. The differences between traditional extended families and nuclear families.

C. The nature of the generation gap and ways to bridge it.

D. How teenagers use modern technology to communicate with parents.

21. The word "They" in paragraph 2 refers to _____.
A. traditional customs B. older generations C. younger generations D. family rules
22. According to paragraph 3, what is a major concern of parents regarding teenagers and technology?
A. Teenagers spend too much time on screens, which may affect their health and studies.
B. Teenagers use technology to violate family rules.
C. Teenagers refuse to teach their parents how to use digital devices.
D. Teenagers buy too many expensive electronic gadgets.
23. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a value held by younger generations?
A. Personal freedom B. Independence C. Strict discipline D. Creativity
24. Which of the following is closest in meaning to the phrase "bridging the generation gap" in paragraph 4?
A. widening the differences between generations
B. reducing the differences and conflicts between generations
C. ignoring the conflicts between parents and children
D. creating more rules for teenagers
25. According to the passage, how can mutual understanding be established in a family?
A. By avoiding arguments at all costs.
B. By letting teenagers do whatever they want.
C. By communicating effectively, listening actively, and respecting each other.
D. By living in separate houses.
26. What can be inferred about older generations from the passage?
A. They are completely against the use of modern technology.
B. They prefer stability and traditional values.
C. They do not care about their children's future.
D. They easily adapt to digital lifestyles.
27. Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 4?
A. Technology is the main reason for family conflicts.
B. The generation gap can be overcome through communication, listening, and mutual respect.
C. Parents should learn modern technology while children learn wisdom.
D. Extended families are better than nuclear families in solving generation gaps.
28. What is the author's primary purpose in writing this passage?
A. To criticize teenagers for spending too much time online.
B. To explain what the generation gap is, why it occurs, and how to reduce it.
C. To encourage families to live in separate houses to avoid conflicts.
D. To prove that older generations are always right.

A smart city is an urban area that uses different types of electronic methods and sensors to collect data. Insights gained from that data are used to manage assets, resources, and services efficiently. In the near future, as the world's population continues to concentrate in cities, smart city technologies will become essential for sustainable development.

One of the most notable features of smart cities is smart energy management. Traditional power grids often waste massive amounts of electricity. In contrast, smart grids use digital technology to monitor and manage energy demand in real-time, reducing waste and lowering carbon footprints. Moreover, buildings in smart cities will feature automated lighting and climate control systems that adjust based on occupancy, saving considerable energy.

Transportation is another sector experiencing a revolutionary change. Autonomous vehicles and smart traffic networks will work together to minimize accidents and eliminate traffic jams. Commuters will receive real-time updates on public transportation schedules through mobile apps, making commuting faster and more reliable.

However, developing smart cities also presents several challenges. High installation costs, data privacy concerns, and cybersecurity threats are major hurdles that urban planners must overcome. Despite these obstacles, the transition toward smart cities is unstoppable, promising a safer, cleaner, and more efficient future for urban residents worldwide.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Living a long and healthy life is a universal desire, and medical experts agree that lifestyle choices play a dominant role in achieving this goal. While genetics account for a portion of human longevity, daily habits such as diet, exercise, and stress management are critical factors that individuals can control.

Dietary habits have a direct impact on physical well-being. A diet high in processed foods, unhealthy fats, and added sugars is closely linked to obesity, cardiovascular diseases, and type 2 diabetes. Conversely, consuming a plant-rich diet containing plenty of vegetables, fruits, nuts, and whole grains provides essential antioxidants and nutrients that protect cells from damage and boost immune functions.

Exercise is another pillar of longevity. Regular physical activity strengthens cardiovascular health, builds muscle strength, and improves mental health by releasing endorphins. Experts recommend at least 150 minutes of moderate aerobic activity per week, such as brisk walking, cycling, or swimming. Additionally, getting seven to eight hours of quality sleep each night allows the body to repair tissues, consolidate memory, and regulate hormonal balances.

Mental and emotional health must not be overlooked. Chronic stress can accelerate aging and weaken the immune system. Engaging in relaxation techniques, maintaining strong social connections, and having a positive outlook on life significantly contribute to overall well-being and a longer lifespan.

19. What is the main topic of the passage?

A. The impact of modern genetics on human longevity.
B. Key lifestyle factors that contribute to a long and healthy life.
C. Why people suffer from chronic diseases in modern society.
D. The importance of medical check-ups in preventing aging.

20. The word "dominant" in paragraph 1 is closest in meaning to _____.

A. minor B. secondary C. primary D. weak

21. The word "that" in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

A. essential antioxidants and nutrients B. vegetables, fruits, nuts, and whole grains
C. cells D. immune functions

22. According to paragraph 2, what health problems are linked to a diet high in processed foods and unhealthy fats?

A. Memory loss and insomnia B. Obesity, heart diseases, and type 2 diabetes
C. Respiratory infections and allergies D. Muscle weakness and bone fracture

23. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a benefit of regular physical activity?

A. Strengthening cardiovascular health B. Improving mental health
C. Enhancing memory consolidation during sleep D. Building muscle strength

24. Which of the following is closest in meaning to the word "pillar" in paragraph 3?

A. obstacle B. foundation C. challenge D. result

25. According to paragraph 3, how much moderate aerobic activity do experts recommend per week?

A. At least 50 minutes B. At least 100 minutes
C. At least 150 minutes D. At least 200 minutes

26. What can be inferred about chronic stress from the passage?

A. It helps people work faster and more efficiently.
B. It has no effect on physical health.
C. It can accelerate aging and weaken immunity.
D. It can be completely eliminated by sleeping.

27. Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 4?

A. Mental health is more important than physical diet.
B. Relaxation, positive thinking, and social connections are essential for longevity.
C. Chronic stress is the only cause of aging.
D. People should avoid social connections to reduce stress.

28. What is the author's purpose in writing this article?

A. To advertise a new health supplement product.
B. To inform readers about how healthy lifestyle choices promote longevity.
C. To warn people against the dangers of genetic disorders.
D. To instruct readers on how to cure chronic diseases.
